

Ali Gilmore

“Imperfection at its best”

Singer/Songwriter | Speaker | Author
Photographer | Filmmaker

As Seen On:

My Human Case: Cancer | Walgreens/Yahoo! Next Act
Big Sky Outdoors | 12 Adventures film series

Photo Credit: Osni Omena

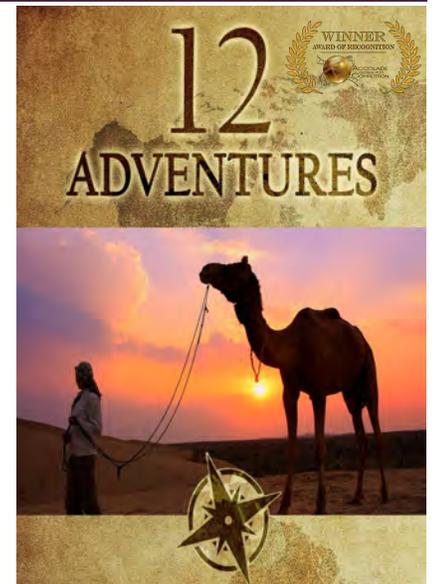

Surviving Stage IV Colon Cancer (again and again)

Seven Years of Battle, Self-Discovery and Gratitude

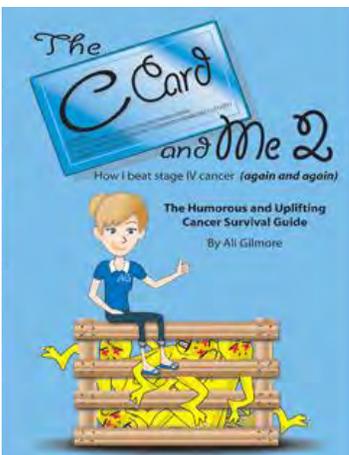

Ali shares her experience of being diagnosed with late stage colon cancer along with the extraordinary challenges and adventures that followed.

“In the summer of 2010, I was working my 15th year in technology management, feeling burnt out and pretty middle aged. If you’d told me then that in the few years to follow, I’d face and survive Stage IV colon cancer (four times), publish two books that make people less afraid of and better prepared to face cancer, become a sports photographer with a highlight of photographing soccer great David Beckham, write and record a full length CD of my original Americana songs, jump out of an airplane, swim in the Mediterranean, walk along the Cliffs of Moher, be the subject of an Emmy nominated film (My Human Case: Cancer) and produce my own Indie adventure film series, I would’ve thought you were some kind of twisted, Tony Robbins wannabe.

But this has been my life to date and it just keeps getting better...”

★★★★★ Inspiring story. Beautiful imagery.

★★★★★ Taking the fear out of cancer

What People are Saying about Ali

- ▶ “Ali is a shining star. She inspires all of us to see the beauty in each day, enjoy the moment and be fearless.”
– Eve Beutler, Founder of Cancer Angels
- ▶ “We’ve been receiving all sorts of “best ever!” compliments about the conference and I’m glad you were a part of it!”
– Mitch Biersner, ASRT
- ▶ “Ali, you are a breath of fresh air. Your story is compelling, relevant and funny.”
– Jim Serrill, Legendary Mascot of the Portland Timbers and TED-Talker
- ▶ “I was blown away actually by her. I would like to bottle it up and serve it to patients.”
– Dr. Eva Lean, Radiation Oncologist

www.aligilmore.com | www.theccardandme.com | www.12adventures.com